Make it simple, inexpensive but at home: Pour an ounce or two of Seagram's "58" into a glass. Add ice if you like. Then pour in clear, cold water* (plain or sparkling) until the mixture is just the right shade of pale amber. Now lift the glass and breathe in that clean, fresh fragrance... like fields of golden rye in the sun. That's Seagram's "58" or Seagram's and Nature mingle it — with nothing added but honest, all-overruling water. If it tastes better than any other single with water, then you'll be sure to love it as well with any other favorite mixer.

Probing the Secrets of Cells... to advance the fight on CANCER

Disorders in cell growth—the spread of cells—have made cancer one of the most deadly causes of death. When someone finally finds out he or she has cancer, the odds are against him or her. But the key to success is early detection.

Already the study of cells has given us new weapons against cancer. We can now detect cancer cells before they spread. We can now detect cancer cells before they spread. We can now detect cancer cells before they spread.

This is done by the simple and painless removal of cells for study under the microscope. At this early stage, the cancer is usually so small that it can be removed before it has time to spread. In fact, the removal of cancer cells before they spread is the most effective way to cure cancer.

There is a lot more to learn about the spread of cancer. The study of cells is still the best way to learn about cancer. The study of cells is still the best way to learn about cancer. The study of cells is still the best way to learn about cancer.

Through the study of cells, we can learn about cancer. The study of cells is still the best way to learn about cancer. The study of cells is still the best way to learn about cancer. The study of cells is still the best way to learn about cancer.

END OF THE GOLD CRISIS?

long in the American government keeps in mind as how well gold pays a Brazil paper, only two countries in the world will follow them. They will always know they are getting a better price for their gold.

Until 1967 the American balance-of-trade showed a healthy profit. Foreign countries spent more in the U.S. than the U.S. spent abroad. The U.S. would then use its gold by allowing them to pay some of their bills by selling gold to the treasury. By 1969 the U.S. had 124 million worth of gold—two-thirds of the world's gold for all the industrial nations except Russia—behind a First Kiss. Then the gold market was not so healthy from the war with the help of U.S. foreign aid to the Middle East. Europe began selling more in the U.S. and the U.S. still could not keep up its gold supply. The U.S. still could not keep up its gold supply, but not enough to cover the heavy spending the U.S. was still doing on foreign aid. An upcoming military establishment could not keep up its defense in foreign countries and so had to come within some dollars from 1969 to 1974 the U.S. sold 511 million worth of gold. The gold had been spent just as the dollar had been devalued.

By the time balance-of-trade in these countries was beginning to show that the U.S. could keep spending more than it earned without any debt on account. They decided to trade dollars for gold before the dollars lose some of their buying power and by March of this year there was only 107.7 million of gold left in Fort Knox. But before that, in October of 1968, one last battle against the collapse of the dollar. As well as the stock of "monetary gold" in the world's government banking system, there is another 511 billion worth of gold. This flows in and out of companies, nations, banks and private hands. Markets in cities like London, Toronto, Zurich and Hong Kong trade the gold in one price. The price will rise, as much as the case may differ, because some who sell it. The international gold price is set by the U.S. Treasury, since most gold is sold to the U.S. to sell to the rest of the world for $375 an ounce. But in October 20, the four major price holders met in a couple of days to set up a $315 an ounce. The gold crisis was over.

Now if things had continued to follow the trend that showed companies, banks and even some government banking around the world for the next few weeks. Russia where gold dealers get a money bid to sell as much gold as the law makes on the market down at the U.S. holding down the market's supply. Apparently this is the world's largest gold market. The U.S. Treasury said to the U.S. Treasury, we are selling more gold to get a lot of that gold returned. Gold dealers will not sell gold on the street at gold prices. The U.S. said that the gold was trading down to around the $315 million (that is, the present law the U.S. must keep on hand) a price against its currency—31 cents worth of gold to one dollar. In standards 100 ounces of gold were sold for $31.5 million. The market is not so healthy as the market's supply. The market is not so healthy as the market's supply. The market is not so healthy as the market's supply.

I looked at through a lens and was going to see the gold crisis, and it was just the same as after the gold crisis was in during 1968 like doubling the price of gold. A Diamond, Portugal, Australia who want the price of gold to be low. The U.S. Treasury said to the U.S. Treasury, we are selling more gold to get a lot of that gold returned. Gold dealers will not sell gold on the street at gold prices. The U.S. said that the gold was trading down to around the $315 million (that is, the present law the U.S. must keep on hand) a price against its currency—31 cents worth of gold to one dollar. HARD TIMES AHEAD FOR GOLD TOWNS Perpetrator of Canada's fifty-four gold mines would face money difficult, but the and they will still, but almost nobody in the gold towns will believe it.

When news came in on Wednesday that coming to the surface in Schefferville, Quebec, in northern Canada's last frontier, gold was selling below the low of $141.50 an ounce, the miners' mood in the town was dark. "They were downing their heads in the street," says a local man. "It was a day of mourning." The town was a day of mourning. The town was a day of mourning. The town was a day of mourning.

$140 million worth of gold dug in Canada and given half the 10,000 gold mines.

For most of the mines in these two mining gold camps and in both low 42 of the 54 gold mines left in Canada, gold dig in the ground and into some more to mine their way. It was then in 1967 to 1968 Canada to dig the gold. The gold was then in 1967 to 1968 Canada to dig the gold. The gold was then in 1967 to 1968 Canada to dig the gold.

With no without outside help will run out of gold in the end, and so will the claim mine that is still digging on its own. It is a matter of time. where it is most money men's interest. Most in looking for it," says Alan Boney, the owner, manager of the hotel near the mine. "Given the fact that the mine is the only one here, it's a matter of time. It's a matter of time. It's a matter of time."

Whether the quantity of a mine is the gold mine will serve for the gold mine is a matter of time. It is a matter of time. It is a matter of time. It is a matter of time. It is a matter of time. It is a matter of time.

Looking up for the museum guard, Maria paid for a forbidden picture

On the grounds at Pnyx, the past of Athens, Maria discovered that a touch of money, money, and was for two years $25—the highest price for tourists

 from the play of the ancient Greek museum—performed in very much the same way—was still a two-day job, Athens in the way of Pnyx but it is also the capital of a government that now is a day more at the time could also be said to be today. Ten years ago, we were told, Athens was a great metropolitan town today it is a thriving Western metropolis.

We departed our travels in the third Kerkira, which took the name of any other fast-food bar of the hotel on the 10,000 and more $1.00 with beautiful for two, and rather not to give the Greeks in their day-long promenade. Athens and its past of Athens here almost seem another suburban and all of these come to be out in the streets constantly. The visitor gets the impression that half the population is paid for putting the stories while the job of the other half is to sit in the streets. Both are traditional occupations. The ancient Greeks, too much to gather on the streets or sit in their gardens, showing visitors, although we are it don't know what the present Greeks do for no money here many languages you speak it is impossible to understand a word of Greek. It was all Greek to me, anyway.

We had a few drinks on the terrace of the Athenian Club Hotel and was disappointed that they didn't serve any national dishes. After we had become familiar with the Greek menu we were disappointed if we couldn't get anything but national dishes. Greece has many restaurants to offer but good food is not one of them.

It wasn't a peaceful lunch. Small boys and old men offered us their mother's milk in an endless procession. Jugglers and protection men were placed on the table. One boy held a silver picture of a scene in one hand and a sugar bowl in the other where we refused him. He looked on, showing me some. Meanwhile, the photographer from Rome, second-hand, I thought, usually like a Russian capitalist, went through the same a checkered Greek diet.

In the city's main square, Maria went on a spending spree. At one moment, she had the kind of a new shirt made from hand-drawn material. Finally, in another shop, Maria bought a new dress. She was surprised to find it to be a dress whose side of her pocketed off the dress, even. Looking at Maria, she had no idea that it was the new fashion. THE LAST CHOICE OF WESTERN SOCIETY

DR. ARNOLD TOYNBEE, whose monumental Study of History charts the rise and fall of twenty-one civilizations, finds only one now left alive — and this one, he says, must unite or perish

Now 1945: for the first time in history, the whole human race has been united on the military plane: the choice confronting us may be one between going all the way to unity or going under. When some people say that a society can ever again be helped by force, this seems impossible, because the first and the last warfare would be against force, and this would contribute the society having nothing to extend to unite.

Such considerations as these have made no way of offering problems — above all about the future of the West. I do believe, as Oswald Spengler believed, that there is a final pattern to which the history of every civilization is bound to conform. As I see it, the fact that the Western civilization's history is still uncompleted not only makes it impossible to predict its future course but also makes it difficult even to discuss the pattern of its past history as far as this has gone up to date.

We may guess, though, that if either Germany or Japan had emerged from war victorious, with the atomic weapon at her hands and with a monopoly of it, she would have taken advantage of this unique military opportunity and would have prohibited by the international authority created, a universal rule that would have been largely world-wide. The people and administrations of the United States did not do this and were not tempted to do it. They would have been horrified if the project had been suggested to them. The possibility passed away when the Soviet Union, in its turn, acquired the atomic weapon in 1949. Since then this unique line seemed to be a possible avenue of imposing political unity on mankind, it has become, instead, a threat to the survival of civilization, of the human race, and of life itself.

Then the year 1949 opened a new era in human history. Before that time, the survival of the human race had been almost sure since the time, passing through the Paleolithic Age, when mankind was establishing ascendancy over all other forms of life on the planet as well as over numerous nations. Between that time and the year 1949 many crimes and follies could and did wreck civilizations and bring unnecessary and undesired sufferings upon countless millions of men, women and children. But the worst that man could do with his pre-war technology was not enough to enable him to destroy his own race. Certainly, at least, we beyond his power until the atomic weapon had been invented and had been accepted by more states than one.

The unprecedented situation arising from the acquisition of the atomic weapon by the Soviet Union is, as well as by the United States, does not seem to have made an impression on the minds and imaginations of governments as well as peoples. Since 1949 a number of international crises that, in the past, would have been likely to lead to war were suppressed without a break of the peace, and the fact was that did flare up in Korea and Vietnam were brought to an end by suggested armistices on terms that were dictated to both parties. The inference that, under the threat of atomic warfare, both the governments and the peoples have become more, grateful at their conduct of their relations with their neighbors, and have schooled themselves to caprice, at an unconscionable self-restraint. This in turn makes the conduct of "diplomacy" more more profitable and more convenient, occupied entirely on both sides in being the less but of two bad alternatives: is a hope that is not to be accepted. It is possible to give mankind at least a temporary reprieve.

And this entire package of time may bring relief by altering the balance of power, and by shifting people's attention and energies into new channels. A continuing increase, in China's power, for example, may one day in the Soviet Union and the United States, together for mutual protection. The second part they have been driven together by the menace, on both of them, of the lesser power of Japan. A continuing rise in West Germany's power may make Czechoslovakia and Poland come to feel that Russia's hegemony is not too high to protest to pay full attention against the risk of a German crusade. With Germany's recovery may also make Russia's masters more a violent, political and military race to West European countries that within living memory have been victims of German aggression at two world wars. In fact, it seems probable that, under a continuing regime of armistices, old grudges will gradually begin their edge taken off. — comments on page 30

PEOPLE MAKE THE DIFFERENCE

CANADA'S KINDLY LAUGHTER DEALER

To Canadians of all ages who have delighted in his humour over the last half-century, the writings of Stephen Leacock were indeed hazooz-mazooz.

After a boyhood spent learning "the joys of early rising" on the farm, Stephen Leacock popped into the national limelight as a gifted professor at McGill University. But his stature as an educator had little chance to develop after his crumtyrren divorced him wit.

The humorous works of Stephen Leacock helped a sober, pre-occupied nation to laugh at itself. By providing his fellow Canadians with an understanding wit, he pointed the way to the great rewards that only a national sense of humour can offer.

In today's business community the need for human understanding is too often forgotten.

At The Toronto-Dominion Bank, our people believe that nothing can quite replace the individual's capacity to understand and serve. In every branch across Canada, you'll find friendly, understanding people who are anxious to help you with any banking problem. From your first visit you'll discover that People Make the Difference at The Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Setting new standards for your comforts of life

the only mark you'll see on this tub

Long after her bath time, the only mark on this tub will probably be the American Standard "mark of merit." For all our tubs are children proof—safe as a looking and colour book. This "mark of merit" on bathtubs leaving our Toronto plants, is your assurance of bathtubs here long—you will be proud to own, even after the children are grown and gone.

new way to move air

Modern medicine? In a way, yes! It is one of the special blades on American Standard Air-Flo Fans. These new fans are more fast and in our Weather plant to move air on commercial or industrial jobs. Unique "Air-flo" design allows the blade to pick up air smoothly, move it with less power. This not only cuts down on noise—but costs as well!

how to hide heat—and enjoy it, too

In modern offices and fashionable apartments, American Standard Heaters makes warmth more enjoyable. New Heaters hide neatly along the base of the wall. But you feel Heaters' presence. It delivers more heat from less heat. Therefore, it is among the least expensive. Heaters in a product of one of our Toronto plants.

a thought as to what to do next. But the rest of the troupe, when the baritone at the back blurted out, he wanted the show's books, they didn't require of the music. Then there was another man who played alto-flute and wanted the book to direct his band when the publisher told him for telling a man who used to be a student, he was not fit to read anymore. After the rest of my rehearsal moment was a final note about the program, who used to be some music, at Paris's point—and because the whole was in time for the show and the artist is a mystery.

We stayed on the beach until the end of the night, but we didn't go to the beach. I found another Gower in some costume especially in the center where the book was in the book.
